Master-morality and
Slave-morality.

~ Friedrich Nietzsche

- morality of the ruling class, of those who have the power and the will to assert themselves over the world.
- a morality of the ruled class, of those who lack the power and the will to assert themselves over the world.

MASTER MORALITY	SLAVE MORALITY
Focused on qualities such as power, pride, and hierarchy	Focused on qualities such as kindness, empathy sympathy, etc.
Essence is nobility	Essence is utility and relief of suffering
Values qualities such as pride, wealth, glory, ambition, desire for power, popularity, self-worth, courage, reverence, and, determination	Values qualities such as kindness, patience, humbleness, equity, generosity, and, virtues
Promotes hierarchical and authoritarian principles	Disregards hierarchy and promotes socialist and communal principles
Any sign of weakness is not tolerated, and harshness and severity are respected	Seeks to eradicate the desire for power and encourage altruism, patience, and kindness
Weights actions on good or bad consequences	Weights actions on good or evil intentions
Emphasizes the use of fear on those who are below them in order to have a sense of respect for the nobles as they see them as the origin of vanity and good	Sees everyone as equal, yet they are subservient for those who are above them; nobles, so they see suffering and oppression as a part of their life
